How I Solved a Problem

My father comes home very late from work. So, at the weekend, he likes to watch TV and then have a sleep. Everyone else tries to be very quiet, so we don't wake him up.

Dad and me

Last month, a woman moved into the flat below ours. She has two children: a small girl and a boy, Dean. He's in my class at school. Dean's mother shouts a lot, and Dean shouts back at her and at his sister. And then his sister starts to cry. Neither of them goes outside to play. They just stay in the flat and make a lot of noise.

Of course, all this noise wakes up my father, and, believe me, he is not very happy about that!

Today, my parents were sleeping, and Dean's mother started to shout. I wondered how to stop the noise. So, I decided to go downstairs and ask Dean to come up and play. I was a bit surprised. His mother let him come upstairs.

We played games on my computer for almost two hours. We were very interested in what we were doing, so we were very quiet.

Finally, my father woke up. After a few minutes, he knocked on the door and came into my room. I hadn't told him about my plan to keep things quiet and I wasn't sure if he was angry or not.

Then, he said, "Hi Tom," and then "Oh, hello, Dean. I didn't know you were here. Well, you boys certainly were quiet! Thanks!"

I think Dean was afraid, but he managed to say, "You're welcome, sir!"

Then he smiled a big smile, because my father said, "Dean, why don't you come back next Sunday to play again?"

Decide if these statements about Tom's story are true or not.
